Sounds good. The response could be something like "EPA coordinates sampling events with state agencies but does not announce such events to the media or general public. EPA coordinates with citizens or facilities where access is needed"

Might check with Allison Lippert to see if she should be responding to questions about last week's field work.

Comments: I read on Facebook the EPA is monitoring some wells in the Central Sands area of Wisconsin. How far in advance does the EPA usually make those announcements and are they posted publicly? Just wondering where the Saratoga anti-factory farms group got the information since I write stories about those farms violating rules and causing pollution for a small farm journal.

Thanks
